Experience

I worked at Appicoder Software House for about 2 to 3 months as a Website Designer. During my time there, I focused on creating and designing websites using HTML and CSS. This role allowed me to develop my skills in web design and gain practical experience in building user-friendly and visually appealing websites.

At Appicoder, I collaborated with a team of developers and designers, contributing to various projects. I learned how to implement design principles effectively and ensure that websites are both functional and aesthetically pleasing. This experience helped me understand the importance of attention to detail and the impact of good design on user experience.
