PERSONAL STATEMENT

I am a composed person that does not shy away from adversity or new challenges on the job. During my time as a student in the University of East London, my composure as well as my communication and time management skills helped me in group and solo projects. Even though I work well in groups, I can complete tasks independently as well. What I lack in experience I make up for in my drive and adaptability. I worked tirelessly to obtain high marks in a country and culture I had to adjust to. While my three years in university were filled with many different obstacles, I relied on my positive attitude and organizational skills to keep me on schedule and persevere through any difficulties.
